

THREE RIVERS CROSSWORD – a new book by Alec Finlay

---

January 2006

THREE RIVERS CROSSWORD is a cryptic word-map of the North East. An innovative and playful crossword following the course of the rivers Tyne, Wear and Tees from source to sea. This major art project was conceived by Alec Finlay and made in collaboration with Sandy Balfour (Guardian), Beth Rowson, Ira Lightman and pupils from Westlea Primary School (Seaham).

"The Three Rivers project, ... is an invitation to dance - to dance through the times, places, words and rivers of the North East of England."
Sandy Balfour

Using the crossword, a popular idiom of travel and leisure pastimes, THREE RIVERS CROSSWORD is an adventure in cryptic thought, with over two hundred clues that refer to the locale. It offers website links to help guide readers to solutions, allowing anyone in the world to navigate this crossword map of the North East. The crossword schema follows the courses of three rivers as they flow past towns and villages, castles, bridges, battles, follies, schools, museums and local flora and fauna. The words include place names (Latin, Old English, Viking, Norman), local history, hills and valleys, landmarks and buildings.

The book also features essays by Finlay and Balfour discussing crosswords and maps.

THREE RIVERS CROSSWORD is the second in a series of bookscapes – an innovative series of publications created by Alec Finlay, platform projects and morning star exploring extended experiences of reading.
